Bilan de l'évaluation

Retour de l'enseignante et priorités pour progresser

CE QUE L'ECOLE DEMANDAIT

Après la lecture de la biographie de Jane Goodall, Douaa devait écrire une brève introduction, cinq questions dont les réponses figurent dans le texte et une conclusion.

Points à renforcer en priorité

- [ ] Former les questions avec was / were / did.
- [ ] Ajouter les majuscules aux noms propres et débuts de phrases.
- [ ] Mettre un point d'interrogation à chaque question.

CE QUI RESSORT DU CORRIGE

L'enseignante a proposé des corrections, notamment « going to », « was » et « did ». Elle a aussi écrit : « Be careful with your Caps and punctuation (ex Question Marks). »

Sur la grille photographiée, les surlignages semblent principalement correspondre à la colonne « Level 3 - Good ». Une note chiffrée précise n'est pas suffisamment lisible pour être affirmée.

MODELES DE QUESTIONS CORRECTES

When was Jane Goodall born?

Réponse : On April 3, 1934.

What did she love as a child?

Réponse : Animals.

What did she dream of doing?

Réponse : Working with animals.

Where did she study chimpanzees?

Réponse : In Tanzania.

What organization did she create?

Réponse : The Jane Goodall Institute.

À retenir : avec DID, on emploie la base du verbe. Exemple : What did she create? (et non « created »).

Dowra

After reading Jane Goodall's biography, you will write a brief introduction and five questions from which you can find the answers in the text. You will also write a conclusion.

Summative Evaluation Jane Goodall

Jane Goodall was born on April 3, 1934, in London, England. When she was a child, she loved animals and dreamed of working with them. In 1957, she travelled to Africa and began studying chimpanzees. Jane spent many years observing chimpanzees in Tanzania. She discovered that chimpanzees could use simple tools, communicate with each other, and show different emotions. Her discoveries changed the way scientists understood these amazing animals.

Jane Goodall has spent her life helping animals and protecting nature. She created the Jane Goodall Institute, an organization that works to protect chimpanzees and their habitats. She also travels around the world to teach people about animals, the environment, and the importance of taking care of our planet. Jane Goodall is an inspiration to many people because she followed her dream and used her knowledge make a difference.
